Brief Write-up in English	The Department of Law successfully organized a three-day International Symposium from 17th to 19th October 2019, bringing together legal scholars, practitioners, and students from across the globe. The symposium focused on the theme “Contemporary Challenges in International and Constitutional Law.” Eminent speakers from various countries presented papers and delivered lectures on topics such as human rights, environmental law, cyber law, and global governance. The event included keynote addresses, technical sessions, and panel discussions that encouraged academic exchange and collaboration. Law students actively participated by presenting research papers and engaging in thought-provoking discussions. The symposium fostered global perspectives on legal education and practice while providing a platform for networking and knowledge sharing. The event concluded with a valedictory session and distribution of certificates. Overall, it was a highly enriching and successful academic event.
